'Good Ole Summertime' memories at Granville Center

At Granville Center on Madison Street, residents took part in a summertime memories event on Wednesday, July 12, during which they drew posters describing their favorite summer memories of the past. From swimming and hiking to working on a farm, the residents, who come from so many different backgrounds, all share good memories of summer days way back.

"I don't anyone who doesn't have fond memories of long summer days, barbecues, going to a lake or pool or just having laughs during the summer months," said Granville Center recreation director Jennifer Hall. "You learn, though, from our residents that people come from so many back-grounds and regions throughout the state and the Northeast, but they all share those summertime memories."

Throughout this event, the residents enjoyed ice cream, coffee and pastries, and they all had stories to share.
